Dear friends,

As this year continues to bring us immense challenges and opportunities, we welcome the chance to reflect on 2020 with you in this annual impact report. Some of our most profound highlights included the Mobile Museum Program, where we visited many schools and provided students with educational presentations. In addition, we began the weekly Virtual Discussion Series, in collaboration with UofM [Detroit Center], Unique Voices in Films, and CMN TV. We’ve since interviewed artists, authors, scholars, archaeologists, curators, and others from all over the world, including Iraq, Israel, England, Australia, UAE, and elsewhere.

As 2021 continues to unfold with ongoing uncertainties, we remain unwavering in our mission and resolute in our commitment to serve our community because we have more work to do. This pandemic has taught us the importance of our human connection, the need for social interaction, and our own humanity. Therefore, we cherish our relationships, partnerships, and connections and are humbled by your support of CCC.

Sincerely,

Weam Namou

In November 2019, we started the mobile museum in an effort to do community outreach presentations to schools, organizations, and corporations. We’ve since visited dozens of schools and gave presentations to over 1000 students.

These presentations include a curriculum based on our five galleries and exhibits contained in the Museum. The curriculum aligns with the State of Michigan’s Grade Level Content Expectations in the various Social Studies fields such as World History, Civics, Geography, and Contemporary World Issues. It also aligns with the 98th Legislative law, which mandates teaching of genocide in public schools for a total of 6 hours during grades 8 to 12.
